Dear Alice,

What medication can be used on a bleeding hemorrhoid?

Answer

Dear Reader,

Hemorrhoids, especially bleeding ones, are certainly no picnic. Luckily, treatment options for hemorrhoids are varied and relatively easy to obtain. Over-the-counter medications containing witch hazel or hydrocortisone are popular go-tos for hemorrhoid relief, and surgical options exist if these drugstore remedies do not rectify the situation.

While painful and potentially embarrassing, hemorrhoids are one of the most common and highly treatable ailments afflicting adults. Hemorrhoids are caused by swollen and inflamed veins around the anus and lower rectum. The presence of blood associated with hemorrhoids, typically bright red and noticeable following a bowel movement, usually indicates excess irritation, and is one of the most common signs of internal hemorrhoids. However, rectal bleeding may also be indicative of other digestive diseases, including colorectal cancer and anal cancer, so be sure to tell your health care provider if you experience this condition.

Medications and treatment options for hemorrhoids are usually fairly simple and can be used in the comfort and privacy of your own home. For mild hemorrhoids, over-the-counter ointments, suppositories, creams, or pads containing witch hazel or hydrocortisone are your best bets. Also, keeping the anal area clean and free of excess moisture, soaking in a warm bath, and applying a cold compress to reduce swelling are more at-home tactics for relief. If hemorrhoid irritation persists or worsens, some minimally invasive procedures may be suggested and performed by your health care provider. This might include rubber band ligation, which essentially strangles a hemorrhoid by cutting off its circulation, injections of a shrinking chemical agent into the hemorrhoid site, and laser and infrared treatments that cause hemorrhoids to shrink. These options are a last resort, to be pursued after simpler, over the counter medications have proved ineffective.

Some simple prevention measures may also help stave off hemorrhoids. Since hemorrhoids are caused by irritation during bowel movements, keeping your stool soft will help prevent hemorrhoids. Eating high-fiber foods, such as vegetables, raw fruits, and whole grains, and drinking plenty of fluids will help maintain an even flow. You may also want to consider fiber supplements as part of your hemorrhoid prevention routine. Finally, exercising has been shown to reduce hemorrhoid incidence, as well as avoiding excess strain and fatigue. For more information on hemorrhoid relief and prevention, check out the Mayo Clinic website [2].

A digestive system that runs like a train schedule, smooth and on time, is the best way to prevent hemorrhoids. But because this is not always possible, hemorrhoids happen to many adults. Turning to one of the many options available to treat hemorrhoids will certainly bring some relief.

Alice!
Category:
General Health [3]
Stomach & Other Gastrointestinal Grumblings [4]

Related questions

Hemorrhoid prevention? [5]
Bathroom reading and hemorrhoids!? [6]
Bloody stools: Should I worry about them? [7]

Resources

Medical Services (Morningside) [8]
Medical Services (CUMC) [9]
Published date:
Oct 09, 2009
Last reviewed on:
Jun 02, 2015

Footer menu

Contact Alice!
- Content Use
- Media Inquiries
- Comments & Corrections

Syndication & Licensing
- Licensing Q&As
- Get Alice! on Your Website
- Full Site Syndication
- Link to Go Ask Alice!

Go Ask Alice! is not an emergency or instant response service.

If you are in an urgent situation, please visit our Emergency page to view a list of 24 hour support services and hotlines.

Source URL: http://goaskalice.columbia.edu/answered-questions/treatment-hemorrhoids

Links